

Evelyn Wever Croes

Evelyn spent 13 ½ years working for the government as a tax advisor and lawyer, serving the last nine as a top official in the government tax department. Then she went back to school to supplement her law degree in order to practice general law. She spent six years at Croes Wever Tchong—where her father is senior partner—while raising three children and actively participating in charity and social work through the Catholic parish of Paradera and the Quota International Club. When asked how she does it, she responds with gratitude to her husband, family members, and carpooling!

A high achiever across the board, Evelyn is also a born leader and organizer. So it comes as no surprise that on the day she passed the bar exam, she was approached by the MEP party and asked to join the public arena as their candidate for minister of finance or minister of justice. While she initially had no intent to join public life, she realized she would have a better chance of improving the lives of the less fortunate in her community by running for office.

Evelyn is an influential Aruban woman, tirelessly devoting herself to her community and country. On top of all that she does during the week, Evelyn sings in the church choir on Sundays alongside her kids—twins Christine and Kevin, 13, and Claudine, eight—as a means to participate, network, and relax. T
